The government should leave Microsoft alone. On the charges that it undercut competitors prices yet gouged consumers-- does that really make sense. Personally, I didn't happen to notice an increase in their software products. (and if there was over the years I thought it would be due to improvements in the products because of upgrades) I don't see what's wrong in having a standard on a computer or allowing a browser to be connected---it makes things easier when a lot of people don't even know how to navigate around their desktop. This started with the Clinton Administration---they went after the wrong enemy.

A prosperous company that created jobs for many people and they ignored the threat of terrorism. We should THANK GOD that people like Bill Gates exist, it makes this country great and Innovative
